THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT ATTACKED

ILLEGALITY OF PASSAGE COURSE IS SET FORTH

By Eliot Tuckerman, a Former Member of the New York State Assembly— Who Assails the Constitutionality of the Dry Law and Cites As His Basis a 123 Year Old Letter Contained In a Musty Volume Printed 93 Years Ago.

Constitutionality of the prohibition amendment was assailed by a petitioner in the New York state legislature Wednesday on the basis of a 123 year old letter contained in a musty volume published 93 years ago.

If this volume, little known and apparently never before scrutinized by the opponents of prohibition, had been in the hands of the United States supreme court when that body upheld the Eighteenth amendment, the petitioner said in effect, the court probably would have ruled against the amendment and prohibition would have died at birth.

Acknowledging his impotence to take direct action in Washington toward reversal of the august federal body's decision, based tho it might be on misapprehension and lack of information, the petitioner expressed hope that something might be done by the state government, if investigation showed a justification for action.

The petitioner was Eliot Tuckerman, a New York attorney and a former member of the state legislature, and the book on which he based his petition was "The Life of Governor Morris," by Jared Sparks, published in 1832.

The letter printed in the book, which Tuckerman said showed the supreme court to have acted in upholding the prohibition amendment in contradiction to the intent of the drafters of the constitution, was written in 1804 by Morris to Uriah Tracy, then a United States senator.

Tuckerman also quoted from the first inaugural address of George Washington to strengthen his contention that the supreme court did not correctly interpret the intentions of the men who framed the constitution in the prohibition ruling.

Washington differentiated sharply between the "ordinary objects" submitted to congress, and "occasional powers" including amendments, in the use of which he expresses confidence that especial care will be taken. The petition was referred to committee.

The whole question of the constitutionality of the eighteenth amendment, Mr. Tuckerman said, depended on the meaning of one short and ambiguous phrase in the fifth article of the constitution, the article which deals with the manner in which amendments may be proposed to the states by congress.

This article reads that congress shall propose amendments "whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary."

that this should be interpreted to mean two-thirds of a quorum such as is necessary for the transaction of ordinary business, one-half of the members and one of each House. This interpretation the supreme court accepted when the first prohibition case under the Eighteenth amendment came before it, and it since has remained the accepted interpretation.

The letter from Governor Morris to Senator Tracy, however, reads as follows:

"The idea that two-thirds of the whole number of senators and of the whole number of representatives are required by the constitution to propose an amendment, is certainly correct."

The Eighteenth amendment, Mr. Tuckerman reminded the state legislature, was proposed by two-thirds of a majority of both Houses, but not by two-thirds of the full membership, and so, according to Morris' interpretation of the fifth article, was not constitutional.

Other letters in the Spark's book, signed by Morris himself and by James Madison, were cited to prove that Morris was the actual drafter of the constitution and therefore there could be no superior authority on its intent.

CHAMP ORANGE EATER

When Harry Ace Murray, down in Florida, heard that Howard Stribling of Cincinnati ate 63 oranges and was proclaimed the champ, Murray's friends sent him to the Ohio city to compete. Murray won his title by eating over 80. In Cincinnati he proved his right to it by eating 65 in 3 hours, beating his opponent's record by 2.

A BEAUTIFUL EULOGY GIVEN BY SEN. WILLIS

Beside the Bier of His Life
Time Friend C. D. Closson,
at the M. E. Church.

The funeral of the late Clayton D. Closson was held at the Methodist Episcopal church Thursday morning.

The church was crowded to capacity by the friends of the family. The lifelong friend of the deceased, United States Senator Frank B. Willis, accompanied by his wife, were in attendance. Following the eulogy delivered by Rev. E. K. Johnson, of Newark, Senator Willis delivered a beautiful panegyric eulogizing his dead friend, telling of their close friendship at college, which lasted thru Mr. Closson's lifetime. The feeling expressed by the speaker standing beside the bier of his personal friend was most touching and his eulogy was the finest ever heard in the Methodist church.

The choir sang the hymns; "Abide With Me," and "Rock of Ages." During the hour of service Hervey Sweyer played on the Foreman chimes at the court house the hymns, "Abide With Me," "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Nearer, My God to Thee." The pallbearers were S. T. Rife, G. W. Littleton, Meeker Terwilliger, W. S. Gearhart, Alfred Lee and Henry Roundhouse. Interment was made at Galena.

The stores in the business district closed during the funeral.

The relatives attending the funeral were Mrs. J. H. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Serge Edwards and children, Mary and Joseph, of Leipsic; Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Thomas and son, Paul, of Continental; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Harris, of Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brundell of Akron; Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Beardslee, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hale, Mr. and Mrs. John Lilley, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCaughey, of Galena.

UNIVERSITY HEAD URGES MORE REVENUE

Be Given State Institution of Learning or It Will Suffer Seriously.

Warning that the university "will suffer seriously" unless an adequate revenue producing program for the state is provided by the general assembly was sounded Wednesday night by President George W. Rightmire, of Ohio State university, in a statement following a hearing Tuesday before the educational section of the house finance committee of the university's needs.

For "reasonably satisfactory operation" of the university, Dr. Rightmire said, the amount originally asked for, $8,262,001.50, was needed. This sum was pared to $6,794,001.50 in the governor's recommendation to the assembly. A further reduction is possible unless additional revenues than those now in sight are provided.

The university's original request, President Rightmire emphasized, was made "in sympathy with the reported low state revenues." The amount recommended by the governor, he declared, was "the lowest upon which the university can operate without seriously crippling its activities."

Lack of revenues under existing laws he declared to be "the great issue confronting the legislature." For the university to suffer for want of adequate funds to meet its "modest budget" from a state "which is fourth in the union in its wealth and far richer than it was a few years ago when there was a large surplus of annual revenues," he maintained, "would be indefensible."

The proposed university budget as recommended to the legislature by the governor represents relatively 10 per cent increase over that for the last biennium, it was pointed out while the annual enrollment in the same period has grown approximately 16 per cent. For the university to suffer a further reduction in its budget, it was added, would make it impossible to cope with the increasing registration, much less to give relief to freshmen and other new students as proposed by President Rightmire as the present major policy of his administration.

Such a contingency, it was pointed out, "would not only block the progress every one has a right to expect and demand, but it would also mean definitely a weakening and lowering of present university standards and efficiency."

"If the university is to serve the people of Ohio moderately during this period it must be granted as a minimum the amount which the state officials recommended; if it is to serve as the 6,000,000 inhabitants of this wealthy state desire, it needs all it has requested."

"To meet either sum greater revenues than are now in sight must be unceasing and in Ohio this should not be serious."

SAYS MORECOWS NEEDED

Dairymen Declare State Would Face Shortage, But For Increase In Production.

Ohio needs more and better cows, is the conclusion reached by the Ohio Dairy Products association after a survey of the dairy situation in the state.

During the last six years the consumption of market milk in Ohio has increased from 293,950,000 gallons to 412,500,000 gallons, a gain of 40 per cent. In 1922, 11,440,000 gallons of ice cream were consumed, compared with 14,026,000 in 1926, a gain of 27 per cent. The increase in the number of dairy cows, however, has been only 2 per cent, there having been 927,000 dairy cows in Ohio in 1921 and 945,000 in 1926.

Were it not for the fact that the dairy cow is producing more milk now than she did in 1921, and previous years, Ohio would no doubt be facing a shortage in the production of market milk and ice cream, dairymen say.

TEX'S FIGHTARENA CLOSED*FOR A WEEK

New York, March 15.—(UP.)

The license of the Madison Square Garden Corporation was suspended for one week beginning March 21 by the State Athletic Commission, after it had examined contracts for the recent fight between Paul Berlenbach and Mike McTigue.

The commission held that Tex Rickard, majority stockholder of the garden, had presented a misleading contract and had violated the rules in paying McTigue and Berlenbach 52 1/2 per cent of the gate receipts.

Under the commission's regulation headliners are allowed a maximum of 50 per cent. It was alleged that Berlenbach got 32 1/2 per cent and McTigue 20 per cent, although the contract filed by Rickard with the commission said Berlenbach was to receive only 30 per cent.

Paulino, the Spanish heavyweight, and Tom Keeney, New Zealand champion, had been matched to meet at the Garden on March 23. Under the penalty arranged today the permit for the bout will be recalled.

No empty purse advises further purchases.

Lesson for March 20THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE

LESSON TEXT—John 14:1-3; II Cor. 5:1-10; I John 3:2, 3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Our Heavenly Home.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Christ Preparing a Home for Christians.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Heavenly Home.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Beauty and Power of the Christian's Hope.

I. Assurance of a Heavenly Home

(Jno. 14:1-3).

The announcement concerning the death of Christ, accompanied with the shaping of events which pointed to a speedy accomplishment of the same, shattered the disciples' hope. The Lord told them that He was going away and that they could not follow Him. This brought great grief to their hearts. They perhaps began to doubt His Messiahship, but He did not leave them comfortless.

1. He asked them to believe and trust in Himself as God (v. 1).

"Ye believe in God, believe also in me." Faith in the God-man, Christ Jesus, will steady the heart, no matter how great the sorrow or intense the grief. If we will but place the cares and burdens of life upon Him our tears shall be turned into joy and our despondency transformed into a radiant hope.

2. He assured them that He was going to prepare a place for them in His Father's house (v. 2). He assured them that that place would have an abundance of room, for there were "many mansions" in His Father's house. We should learn from this that heaven is not an imaginary place. It is a prepared place for a prepared people.

3. He assured them that He would come again and escort them to heaven (v. 3).

Jesus will not wait for His own to come to Him, but will personally come back to the earth and call forth from the graves those who have died in the faith (I Thess. 4:16, 17), and transform living believers and take them all to be with Himself in the heavenly home for evermore. When He said, "I will come again," He no doubt meant His personal, bodily and literal return to this earth.

II. Assurance of the Resurrection of the Body (II Cor. 5:1-10). That which nerved Paul for his conflict even when physical death threatened was the assurance that even such violence would but hasten his presence with the Lord. As he faced the uncertain future he was sure:

1. That his present body was only a tabernacle, a tent in which he lived temporarily (v. 1). Though this tent were destroyed he had nothing to fear, as there was a building to take its place. This house which is to take the place of the tent is

(1) From God.
(2) Not made with hands.
(3) It is eternal.

Our natural body at best crumbles to dust in about three score and ten years, but the resurrection body shall abide forever.

(4) It is to be "in the heavens."

2. He earnestly longed for the change (vv. 2-4). The human personality instinctively shrinks from a state of disembodiment, but the intelligent Christian earnestly longs for the exchange of the natural body for the spiritual. We long to put off the perishable and take on the imperishable.

3. This plan was wrought by God (v. 5).

God did not fashion the body for death, but for life. God is not the God of the dead but of the living.

4. Believers should be of good courage (vv. 6-8).

While we live in this body we are absent from the Lord, but because of the Holy Spirit dwelling within us, we confidently walk by faith, being more anxious to be absent from the body and present with the Lord.

5. The believer's chief concern in this life should be to please the Lord (vv. 9, 10).

Nothing matters—health, sickness, strength, weakness, fame or obscurity, friends or loneliness—provided at the end of the journey we hear the Lord's "well done, good and faithful servant."

III. Glorified With the Lord (I Jno. 2:2, 3).

We are now God's children, but the change which awaits the resurrection has not come yet. When it comes it will reveal our wonderful future. When the Son of God shall be manifested we shall be like Him in glory. When Christ shall come again the saints shall share His glory. This glorious hope will transform the life. The one who has it will keep himself pure even as He is pure.

MORE TIMEALLOTTED TO MANUAL ARTS

An increase in the time allotted to manual-arts courses in public schools was reported by 221 out of 307 representative cities in the United States which responded to a questionnaire sent out by the Interior Department, Bureau of Education. Results of this survey, conducted by Maris M. Proffitt, specialist in industrial education, and covering the period 1915 to 1925, have been published in Industrial Education Circular No. 26. If replies from the cities participating in the survey, all of which have populations of 5,000 or more, are typical of the remaining cities of the same class, it may be assumed that 72 per cent of the larger cities of the country, during this 10-year period, increased in their schools the time allotted to manual-arts work. The greatest increase in time allotment for this course, 64 per cent, occurred in cities having from 5,000 to 10,000 people. All cities of more than 20,000 population included in this study offer manual-arts courses, and no city of more than 50,000 population reported a decrease in the time allotted in public schools to manual arts.—School Life.

NEW CLEWS IN STOUT MURDER

McArthur, March 15.—(UP.)—A dinner bucket which contains a note, "I have gone away forever, find me if you can," is one of the most important exhibits by which the state hopes to convict Mrs. Inez Palmer, 24, of the murder of William Stout, 65, wealthy Vinton county farmer.

Officials believe Mrs. Palmer "planted" the bucket and note to corroborate her story of leaving, which was accepted until his body was found Saturday in a well.

These exhibits and her story that Stout told her he killed his wife, Sarah, last November, form the body of evidence against the young woman, who came here last year to serve as housekeeper for Arthur, Stout's son, now in jail charged with the murder of his stepmother.

Authorities hold Mrs. Palmer fabricated the story in the hope that Arthur, to be tried March 21, would be released from jail.

The tale of a tangled love affair was aired after the body was discovered and Mrs. Palmer confessed slaying Stout "in self-defense."

Mrs. Palmer will be arraigned in Vinton County Common Pleas Court tomorrow.

PAUPER GRAVE REVEALS FATE OF NOTED DOCTOR

Famed Californian Was Picked Up as Derelict by the Police of Utica, N. Y.

Berkeley, Calif.—A tale of the strange fate of a once famous scion of one of America's oldest families, came to light in dispatches from Utica, N. Y., reporting the body of Dr. George Hillegass had been taken from a pauper's grave and was to be brought to the San Francisco bay region for final burial.

Doctor Hillegass, one of the earliest settlers here, a graduate of the University of California, and distinguished in civic and medical life, dropped from sight in 1913. Old and broken and apparently penniless, he died a public charge in a hospital in Utica in 1925 and was buried in a public cemetery after efforts to find friends or relatives had failed.

The dim beginnings of the story might be traced back to the Revolutionary war when Michael Hillegass rebelled against the power of Great Britain and threw his influence and wealth to the cause of the struggling colonies. His picture adorns some of the $10 gold notes of the country today.

Historians of the family here trace Dr. George Hillegass' ancestry to Michael Hillegass.

Doctor Hillegass, one of the noted physicians of his time, is credited with having given to the University of California much of the land included within the present campus and with having developed extensive holdings in other districts of Berkeley and Oakland. A Berkeley avenue is named for the family.

An extensive search, made after the physician's disappearance in 1913, was unavailing. Then he appeared in Philadelphia in 1922 as a witness in probate proceedings of the estate of Mme. Elmira A. Boulet, a relative. The estate is a parcel of Oakland waterfront property which has appreciated greatly in value.

Early in 1925, when Doctor Hillegass was picked up by the Utica police in a railroad station, a mysterious bit of human driftwood, he had holdings estimated at $150,000. His wanderings between 1913 and 1922, and in the years between the time he appeared in Philadelphia and at Utica, aged, apparently penniless, disheveled and unkempt, form a mystery that may never be solved. There is no indication he suffered a mental lapse of any sort or that he had any personal habits that would have caused the fall from his high estate.

The family never diminished its search for the physician and Fred C. Peterson, Oakland attorney, employed by members of the family here, finally traced him to the Utica cemetery vault.

A judicious amount of indifference adds piquancy to love-making.

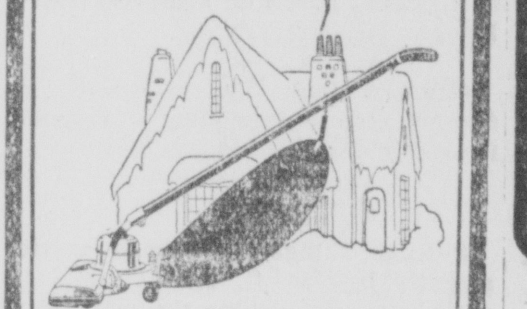

Women who want to help retain the well-earned reputation of the sex for having the last word are advised to write their husband's epitaphs in advance.

PLAN SHIP ROAD
ACROSS MEXICOWould Compete With Panama Canal, Because Toll
Charges Will Be Less.

New York.—A "ship railway" across the entire span of the Isthmus of Te-huantepec, in the southernmost part of Mexico, with sufficient capacity for hauling the largest of the world's present day seagoing vessels, is the dream of European capitalists, according to plans revealed here.

The program calling for the construction of this novel feat of engineering, which for the last three years has occupied the attention of some of Europe's brainiest civil and
mechanical engineering minds, hinges
solely on the final granting of a concession under consideration by the Mexican government.

According to Rudolf Wassermann and Henrich Fastisch, German scientific engineers, at one time associated with the late Hugo Stinnes, who now are in New York on the way to the City of Mexico, the contemplated "ship railway," when completed, will prove a keen competitor to the Panama canal
because its total charges will be less.

To Cost More Than $150,000,000.
"It is the contention of the scientific world," Herr Wassermann said, "that wherever a canal can be built to float
a ship, a railroad can be constructed to carry one, and the present estimated cost to build the 'ship canal' across the isthmus will be between $150,000,000 and $175,000,000."

The plans which will be submitted to the Mexican government for its approval call for an almost straightaway and level route lying between the town of Coatzacoalcas, at the mouth of the river by the same name, on the Bay of Campechy, state of Yucatan, across the isthmus a distance of about 117 miles, to the town of Huixtlan, state of Oaxaca, on the Pacific coast.

Herr Wassermann said the route of the proposed "ship railway" calls for but one base across the entire stretch,
and this is at a point known as Chivela, in Oaxaca, where a mammoth turntable will be built to make the necessary bend in the direction of Huixtlan in order to take advantage of a broad and level canyon through the Sierra Madres.

Herr Wassermann said the right of way will be built up on 30 rails, spaced according to standard gauge,
while the specifications call for a grade of not more than fifty feet to the mile at each terminal. The trackage will submerge or descend into water at these points, enabling the ship to be lodged into a floating drydock or cradle for transportation across the isthmus.

"The wheeled cradle carriage or dry-dock," explained Herr Wassermann,
"will be built in sections or units, thus permitting easy adjustment of the keel blocks which readily can be arranged to accommodate the largest ships."

The cradles can be drawn by from six to fifteen heavy locomotives (depending upon the ship's tonnage), each one of which will be equivalent in hauling power to six of the ordinary freight type.

Out of Water Seven Hours.

"Every known feature and angle has been given most careful study, even to the pressure of one-hundredth of an inch upon the cradle and roadbed when ships of various capacities are on the way from terminal to terminal," Herr Wassermann said.

Herr Fastisch, who is a former artillery colonel of the Imperial German army, says one of the ship loaded cradles can be transported across the isthmus at the rate of 20 miles an hour, and that no vessel will be kept out of the water more than seven hours at the most, it being figured that it will take almost an hour to make the necessary bend on the turntable at Chivela. "The bar at the mouth of the river at Coatzacoalcas, on the Gulf of Mexico, will have to be dredged extensively to permit the vessels to get into the runway approaching the site of the eastern terminal," continued Herr Fastisch, "as also will be the case of Huixtlan, where an artificial harbor will have to be dredged to carry the scheme to a successful conclusion. The latter feat alone will require an expenditure of from $5,000, 000 to $7,500,000."

The program calling for the construction of this novel feat of engineering, which for the last three
years has occupied the attention of
some of Europe's brainiest civil and
mechanical engineering minds, hinges
solely on the final granting of a concession under consideration by the Mexican government.

Body Buried 14 Years
Is Dug Up Petrified

Luray, Va.—The transformation of a human body into stone worked swiftly in the case of George W. Seekford, second son of George W. Seekford, a former supervisor of Springfield district. After having been buried near Rileyville, eight miles north of Luray, for four years relatives decided to have the body removed to another burial ground.

Those engaged in removing the body found it had increased in weight from 165 to 600 pounds. With the exception of a beard, that had grown to more than a foot in length, every feature of Mr. Seekford had been retained. Petrification is attributed to the constant percolation of mineral-ized water through the earth.

Pygmies

Strange things have been written recently by Mr. R. M. Macdonald, a prospector, concerning the pygmies of New Guinea. These little people are about forty-two inches high, sturdily built, and almost covered with light gray hair. They have voices like megaphones, can blow tiny darts through tubes with unerring precision, and carry those needle-like missiles in their frizzed hair. But the oddest thing about them is that they hold in strict subjection certain tribes of giant cannibals, who live about them and defend them against all outsiders. The giants are fierce and mighty against all white men, they have never been brought under foreign rule, but they are the humble servants of the dwarfs, whom they regard as magicians.—
Pierre Van Paassen, in the Atlanta Constitution.

Seek Whales Again

After a hiatus of more than half a century, whaling operations are to be resumed on an extensive scale on the southern California coast. A whaling fleet consisting of the factory steamer Lansing, with four killers, has established a base at South Bay, San Clemente Island, and has started a hunt for the famous California "grays," the humpback and the sperm, the only species frequenting
these waters. The whale oil, fertilizer and chicken feed, the principal products derived from the whale catch,
will be disposed of entirely in the California markets, officials of the whaling company say.

Pity the Intelligentsia!

President Sumner of Talladega college said in Talladega the other day.
"The intelligentsia all over the world—the college professors and ministers and poets and scientists—are having a hard time of it. Between capital on the one side and labor on the other they are being pretty badly flattened out. The way they have to economize!"

"I heard of a young college professor last month who, after he'd been accepted by a pretty girl, slipped on her finger a combination engagement, wedding and teething ring."

Taxi Travel on Water

"Water taxis" are to be used in Amsterdam for service in the canals which wind about the city. The taxis will accommodate two to four persons and are really small motorboats with cabins, the taximeter being attached to the shaft of the propeller.
The taxis were decided upon to meet the increased growth of the city on both sides of the River IJ, as well as the other waterways of the city and nearby districts.

New Smokeless Fuel

Experiments are being conducted in Virginia on the development of a new smokeless fuel derived from soft coal.
The new fuel, between a coke and a coal, can be produced and sold at a lower cost than anthracite, but probably will cost slightly more than soft coal.

ASK CONGRESS TO HELP HISTORIANSRequest That Census Takers
Broaden Duties.

New York.—America must know more about Americans, historians assert. In a resolution adopted by the American Historical association congress is asked to have census takers throw more light on family histories.

Lack of information in census reports has been a stumbling block to important social studies, it is declared. The association urges that the fifteenth census record counties as well as the states in which native Americans were born, and the names of the local government units as well as the states or counties in which foreigners were born.

In a close analysis of social elements, the historian must know these facts, it is explained. By the study of such figures he learns how many individuals migrate from their birthplaces, where they eventually settle,
and how long they stop in intervening states.

Much misapprehension about migration from one section of the country to the other may be cleared up by more complete figures, it is believed.

The resolution has been sent to the chairman of the committee on census of both houses of congress and to the National Research council.

Broadening the scope of the census would, the historians say, greatly aid
the new program of historical research for which an endowment of $1,000,000 is being raised by a national committee headed by former Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana and with headquarters at Columbia university.

"Among the activities proposed,"
according to a statement by the association, "is a study of the problems arising in our society from immigration and the secondary stages of its development, the conditions produced by the division of our people into great racial sections of the historical approach to the legal, economic and social conditions of the present."

"Such a study in the hands of competent men will have great significance in our intellectual life."

Here's Anthology of Men Who Swallowed Live Fish

New York.—Many a gullible mortal has swallowed a fish story, but how many have ever swallowed a live fish?
Dr. W. E. Guder, associate in ichthy-ology in the American Museum of Natural History, has published a collection of accounts, dating back to 1567,
of live fishes lost in the food and air
passages of man.

In the coasts of France and Italy
and in India and the Far East, says Doctor Guder, fishermen are accustomed to take live fishes between their teeth, either to kill them by biting, or to hold them while the hands are used to free the hook or net. A fish so held, if it pricks the lips with its spine or makes a sudden wriggle, readily causes the man to open his mouth,
into which the fish is very likely to jump still farther.

Most of the accounts show, continues Doctor Guder, that the fishes
most often lodged in the pharynx,
where the spines, fins and gills make it impossible to pull them out without lacerating the throat. Death usually follows from suffocation unless an operation can be performed to open the trachea and remove the offender quickly. The consequences are somewhat less serious though not less unpleasant when a fish finds its way into the esophagus, according to Doctor Guder's data.

High Winds Paint Alaska
Town With Salt of Sea

Unca, Alaska.—This little fishing village endured a salt bath when a raging tempest swept Bering sea and the Aleutian Islands. Spray from the ocean was carried over the entire town and forced by the wind into every crevice and crack.

Following the receding sea and decreasing wind the buildings presented a queer appearance. Drifts of salt lay on roofs, network of salt hung on window panes and trees and shrubbery were glittering in the sun.

Believes in Fairies

New York.—Bringing a wide assortment of scientific apparatus, E. L.
Gardner of London arrived on the France with the one purpose of proving there are fairies. He is secretary of the English Theosophical society.

Big Airliner to Link
Egypt, Central Africa

London.—A big new triple screw air liner to use on a 1,200-mile jungle airway from Khartoun through Central Africa to Kismayu in the Kenya colony is being designed in Leeds. This new empire airliner will be based on the successful Blackburn Rolls Royce flying boat built for the air ministry which proved to be the fastest in existence.

Owing to the presence of lakes and swamps along the route, it will be possible by using seaplanes to alight at almost any point. Passengers may be picked up and set down at any "safe" spot along the line.

STOCK BREEDERS
COUNTY TOUR
AND BANQUETFriday, National and State Officers Will be Guests of County Farm Bureau.

Our shippers of poultry and green vegetables have been greatly handicapped recently on account of the evening northbound N. & W., train not remaining at the station long enough for the express men to load bulky shipments.

In order to fill orders for such articles in eastern cities, our shippers were forced to load their products in the morning to be laid over in Columbus until the evening eastern trains.
This caused a great loss to them, due to "drift."

This matter was brought to the attention of the officers of our chamber of commerce, who took the matter up with the officials of the Norfolk and Western. Tuesday evening, due to a new order, the train was held long enough to load several coops of poultry to the shipper. The loss saved will amount to at least one cent per pound.

AMUSEMENTS

"Paradise for Two" a rip-roaring comedy drama that sent the audience into spasms of laughter opened last night at the Met theater for a two days run. That evening Richard Dix as Steve Porter, the handsome and affluent young bachelor who never can say no to the pretty young things who panhandle him for money adds an other ray of light to his shining star of popularity. Other peculiar problems that Dix has to face in this newest starring role of his are a fortune
that is not his unless he gets married and he doesn't want to get married,
an irate uncle with a lock on the Porter inheritance and who insists that the key to the strong box is a wedding ring for Richard, and a pretty girl, Sally Lane (Betty Bronson) with whom he falls in love after hiring her to pose as his wife.

There are complications to the plot
that form situations to make an audience hold its sides in laughter. There are scenes that bring the suspicion of a catch in the throat. For there's pathos enough to add spice to the comedy and bring it out to better advantage.

Andre Beranger as Maurice, the stage producer and Edmund Breese,
as Uncle Howard, in their able character interpretation add much to make the picture as fine as Dix has ever done. Gregory La Cava who directed the star in three successive comedy hits, directed "Paradise for Two."

REVIVAL CONTINUES.

"An while they went by, the Bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage; and the door was shut,"
was Miss Banning's subject Wednesday night.

Jesus is coming back again into the world with great glory. The wise took extra oil in their vessels beside what they had in their lamps but the foolish only took oil in their lamps.

You can keep you light burning and if Jesus comes when the cock crow
at noon or at night you will be ready.

There were five wise and five foolish virgins. The wise were extremely wise and the foolish extremely foolish. People forget that God is on the throne looking down and that some day they will fall. Jesus died on the cross to buy full salvation.

People say salvation is imaginary
but it is real, it is wonderful the Holy Ghost will abide.

The Holy Ghost will come into your soul and will demonstrate and will do the showing off and will show that God is in you. If you have your door open to God, He will have the door open for you.

HARTMAN THEATER.
The Messrs. Shubert's "The Student Prince" will again offer its altogether bewitching melodic appeal to theatergoers at the Hartman theater next Monday night, for a limited engagement of three days with matinee on Wednesday.

This story of a prince who falls in love with a lowly commoner had a peculiar grip on theatergoers. It is one of several costume musical offerings that can be said to have a universal appeal.

It would be difficult to place one's fingers on the particular moments of the operetta which interest audiences most. Many theatergoers have seen it three and four times and found in each visit an added beauty that was overlooked on the previous visit.

There is no doubt but what Sigmund Romberg has composed a delightful score. There are so many numbers, which call for encores that to call the outstanding moment of the operetta would be an offense to the beauty of another number in the operetta. "Deep in My Heart, Dear," the love duet between the prince and Kathie has tender lilt. It practically acts as the theme of the romantic environment. "Golden Days," "Just We Two," "The Student's Serenade," "To the Inn We're Marching" and "The Drinking Song" all offer something to bring the audiences' hands together to demand encores.

The company this year will be headed by Lloyd Garrett, a young tenor who has received flattering commendation from both critics and public. Ruth Williams will be "Kathie," Margaret Cantrell as the princess and David Reese as "Detleff." Others are James Heenan, Gertrude Maitland, Emmy Niclas, Carl Formes, the third generation of a family of noted singers, Robert Grieg and Gus Alexander.

There will be a student male chorus of fifty and an augmented orchestra of twenty.

The AMERICAN LEGION
(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

MANY INVITATIONS TO LEGIONNAIRES

Countries of Europe are looking forward eagerly to the visits of American Legionnaires who tour the continent either before or after the convention in Paris next September, according to advices received by Bowman Elder, of Indianapolis, national chairman of the France convention committee. Governments, organizations of veterans of the World war, and individuals are co-operating in providing the best for the veterans who take advantage of the official Legion trip abroad.

An invitation to visit the British Isles has been presented at national headquarters of the Legion in Indianapolis by H. H. Brownlee, commander of London, England, Post No. 1 of the Legion. The British envoy presented an invitation from the "On to Britain" organization for the 30,000 Americans who will attend the Paris convention to cross the channel while abroad. A cablegram received immediately after the visit of Brownlee announced that all British railroads have made a reduction of 25 per cent in rates for the convenience of the Legionnaires. Ireland sent an invitation for the Legionnaires to visit the Emerald Isle before or after the convention.

Offers of the British war veterans for entertainment of the visiting Americans are similar to those made by other countries of Europe. Italy, Belgium and France have granted a considerable reduction in railroad fare. Men who fought in the World war now living in the provincial towns of Europe are organizing to give interpreters and guide service to the Legionnaires who tour the continent.

It is estimated by John J. Wicker, Jr., national travel director, that at least $5,000,000 will be saved the war veterans of the United States in travel and living costs while away from home. One of the most attractive savings is that in eliminating passport and visa charges in all countries of Europe excepting Russia. Legionnaires may obtain an identification certificate with their passage costing but $1 and this serves in lieu of the passport and visa. The French government charges $10 for a passport and $10 for a visa and if the veteran visits France alone he will save $20 by this arrangement. Other countries charge as high as $40 for a visa and the arrangement made by the Legion will save more than $1,000,000 on the total movement of 30,000 persons.

Steamship companies carrying the large peacetime army across the Atlantic have granted cuts in travel costs. The cheaper grade accommodations on the Legion steamers are from $145.80 to $230, averaging $170. They are better than ordinary "tourist cabin" accommodations for regular tourists. The Legionnaire is entitled to the freedom of the ship, which is worth in ordinary travel $83. The independent traveler must pay $182, including tax, to make the round trip "tourist cabin" and the $83 for freedom of the ship would bring the total cost of this trip to $265, if it were not for the travel arrangements of the Legion. The customary landing charge of $5 will not be made of veterans landing at the southern France ports and this will effect a saving on the movement of $150,000.

Ninety per cent of the Legionnaires making reservation to date have chosen to take battlefield and cemetery tours while abroad. A great number have also signified their intention of making extensive tours in Europe under the advantageous travel rates either prior to or after the convention. To take care of those wishing to travel abroad the France convention committee of the Legion has arranged for advanced steamship sailings for the Legionnaires from each state and for delayed return sailings. The railroads in the United States will accept the one-fare-for-round-trip rate from the Legionnaires' home town to the port of embarkation until December 1.

An attractive two-color "On to Paris" steamship folder giving the rates, travel plans, and official information may be obtained by writing to the Department France Convention Officer of any state or to the France Convention Committee, National Headquarters, the American Legion, Indianapolis, Ind.

The First Doll's House
What may prove to be the earliest British doll's house has been discovered in an old country house in Chelmsford. It is a two-storied house about five feet high, built of solid oak, and contains four large rooms, attic and a balcony on top. The legs on which the house is mounted and the paneling and the mirrors, are, it is said of definite Queen Anne design and workmanship.

London Street Is Paved With Blocks of Rubber
Washington.—The first thoroughfare to be constructed of rubber is now in use in London. Blocks consisting of rubber caps, vulcanized to a brick base, have been laid in New Bridge street, a road subjected to heavy traffic, and, according to cable reports to the Department of Commerce, have proved successful.

PAT M'DERMOTT

Life Term Refused to "Squeal"
On Confederates.

Columbus, March 16.—(UP.)—Pat McDermott, serving a life term in Ohio Penitentiary for the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton editor, underwent a severe grilling at the hands of Warden P. E. Thomas, Detective Ora Slater and Prosecutor Henry Harter Jr., of Canton, in the warden's office at Ohio Penitentiary late Tuesday.

The grilling ended at 3:35 p. m. and after McDermott had been taken back to his cell, Warden Thomas announced to newspaper men: "McDermott said nothing."

While Stark County officials were questioning McDermott, A. L. Mills, his attorney, won his fight before Franklin County Appeals Court to be permitted to see Pat.

An order giving him a right to a private interview Wednesday morning was issued. The court held that while the warden may use his discretion in permitting an attorney to talk to a convicted client, he had misused this power by withholding permission to see McDermott two months ago.

The ruling, however, followed statement from Joseph A. Godown, assistant attorney general, that the warden was ready to consent to the interview.

SCHWAB OPTIMISTIC

New York, March 15.—(UP.)—Charles H. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, returned on the Leviathan today from a two-months' vacation in Europe. He was optimistic as to conditions both in this country and in Europe.

The steel magnate said this had been his seventieth crossing of the Atlantic and would probably be his last.

Schwab said he found much anti-American feeling in Europe. "I attributed it to prosperity in this country and lack of it in Europe," he said, adding that business in Europe is picking up.

This One Is Noisy

Douglas pine squirrel is darker and browner than its relatives, for it inhabits the moist, coniferous forests west of the Cascades in the Pacific Northwest, says Nature Magazine. It is a noisy little animal, scolding or singing as the mood of the moment indicates. Any edible thing will do for a red squirrel's meal. Average length is 14 inches.

Check Diseases
by FertilizingPhosphate, Limestone and Manure Benefit Corn Quality and Yield.

One of the outstanding results of the corn disease studies being made by the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, is the favorable effect of manure, limestone and phosphate upon the yield and quality of disease-infected corn. It is reported by E. E. DeTurk, chief in soil technology at the college.

As an average of 21 comparisons covering a period of four seasons at Urbana and Bloomington, the above treatment increased the yield of corn from good seed from 68.2 bushels to 77.7 bushels an acre, or 11.5 bushels; while with diseased seed the increase amounted to 14.3 bushels, the yield being raised from 52.4 to 66.7 bushels.

Obtain Yield of Sound Corn.

While some of the damage of corn rot diseases can be greatly reduced by soil treatment, other injury cannot be so reduced. The yield finally obtained in any case is the result of many factors, some working for and some against the corn, some for and some against the parasite fungi. Whenever a set of conditions is established which are favorable for the growth of corn, but which affect the disease-producing organism unfavorably, or not at all, a good yield of sound corn will be obtained. On the other hand, if the particular disease organism involved responds favorably to the same influences which favor the corn, the corn produced may be even poorer in yield or quality than if the treatments had been omitted.

Thus, in one case the total yield of corn from good seed was increased 2.4 bushels, while from fusarium-infected seed the increase was 12 bushels for treatment with rock phosphate in addition to organic manures. The increases in sound corn alone were 4.3 bushels and 18.4 bushels for good and fusarium-infected seed, respectively. In this case conditions favoring the corn plant did not likewise favor the growth of the disease-producing organism.

With diplodia-infected seed, a different situation exists. On early-planted corn, rock phosphate had a similar favorable effect in raising the yield of sound corn. The increase from good seed was 2.6 bushels and from diplodia seed was 13 bushels. However, when the corn was planted late in the season, the rock phosphate had no effect upon the yield from good seed, but decreased the yield from diplodia seed by 4.5 bushels. In this case the disease-producing organism, instead of the corn, was being fertilized.

Discover New Possibility.

An important outcome of these investigations has been the discovery of a new possibility in combining corn breeding with fertilization for larger and more economical yields. It has been found possible, for instance, to develop, by selection and breeding, strains of corn which have more than the usual capacity for absorbing and utilizing phosphate from the soil and particularly from added phosphates. These developments may ultimately come to mean much to the corn grower.

Attacking corn diseases from many angles has taught the lesson that these important diseases cannot be eliminated or controlled by any one method. Some gains have been made through fertilizer treatment and much more by seed selection and breeding, but neither of these nor even both together can be expected to furnish the complete solution of the problem.

Find Impure Seeds Are Large Tax on Farmers

Clean seed and clean land will help the farmers to save hundreds of thousands of dollars this year, according to a statement just issued by the extension division, Department of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota.

The statement referred to prints figures obtained from C. P. Bull, weed commissioner of the state department of agriculture, to the effect that more than $675,000 was paid by farmers for threshing the dockage of Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana, in a single year, and that more than $800,000 was paid for shipping the same stuff to market.

It is further estimated that on the basis of the average acreage of wheat in Minnesota for the last five years, the total loss imposed by unclean seed and unclean land runs to $1,000,000.

Losses of great amount in the growing of other crops occur in the same way.

Specialists at the Minnesota experiment station advise the planting of clean seed in clean land.

Planting Grapevines

The most popular distances for planting grape vines are 8 by 8 feet or 9 feet between the rows and 10 feet between the plants in the row for vigorous varieties such as Worden and Lucile. Grape vines should be planted in early spring and on thoroughly prepared ground. The hole should be about 15 inches across and about the same depth. The plants should be set so the upper end of the old cutting, used in propagation of the vine, shall be an inch or more below the surface of the leveled ground. Prune back to two strong buds at planting time.

SOFT FOR JURY

Washington, March 15.—(UP.)—Justice William Hitz, this afternoon decided to simplify for the jury the alleged contempt of court trial of Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate.

Hitz ruled that he would pass on all law questions involved in the matter of pertinency of the Senate investigators' question to Sinclair, which was the basis for the present trial.

The jury, the judge ruled, only will "have to say whether Mr. Sinclair was summoned by the oil committee, whether he appeared, whether questions were put to him and whether he refused to answer."

DONAHEY FREES TWO CONVICTS

Pardon of Lorain Prisoner Bars Deportation.

Columbus, March 16.—Matt Novacic of Lorain, convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to serve a minimum sentence of two years in Ohio Penitentiary for slaying his wife, was a free man Tuesday and safe from deportation to Jugo-Slavia by reason of a pardon issued by Governor Donahey.

Novacic, eligible to parole, was threatened with deportation by federal immigration authorities whenever released, on the ground of moral turpitude. Clemency Board recommended pardon for him because, under the federal law, that would prevent his deportation.

The governor also freed Edwin Fenchel, Akron, under a commutation of sentence, effective at once. Fenchel who has been ill in the Penitentiary hospital, was serving a 10 to 25-year sentence for robbing a drug store.

Upon recommendation of Sandusky county authorities, the governor has commuted to one year the sentences of Steve Polski, Fred Krienke and Edward Hawk, serving two to 20 years on a statutory charge.

The Smithsonian Institution says that nothing indicative of any form of life, either animal or plant, has ever been found in meteorites. BANKER SENTENCED A DOG'S LONG MEMORY

Pittsburgher Gets Three and a Half Year Pen Sentence.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 15.—(UP.)—Charles E. Knapp, central figure in the $320,000 bond swindle which wrecked the Brotherhood Savings & Trust Co. here, threw himself on the mercy of the court today when he pleaded "no defense" to a charge of larceny in connection with the bank's loss of $102,000.

Knapp was sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and serve three and one-half years in the Penitentiary, the maximum sentence on the charge, by Judge Harry H. Rowland.

Edward Goodfellow, on whose farm the bulk of the money was recovered, pleaded "no defense" to a charge of receiving stolen goods, but sentence was suspended until a report on the condition of Goodfellow's health was received.

COMING BACK

Sert. Billie Murray in advance of "America Under Fire," came over from Lancaster Tuesday where the picture is showing this week to call upon friends. The picture will show in Chillicothe next week and will play a return engagement under the auspices of Howard Hall Post, American Legion in this city next month.

It's a wonderful picture of the World's War.

There are millions of people in the world who never make a mistake—but there're all in the cemetery.

In 1906, writes a Companion subscriber, I taught school in Salt Lake City, living in an upstairs apartment in F street. The lady who owned the house had a large shepherd dog, called Don. He was an animal of wonderful intelligence and a great pet. Nine years before I lived there the lady had a broken leg, and during her convalescent period she had trained the dog to do several things to help her. She had even taught him to bring the potatoes from the cellar, carrying them up one at a time in his mouth.

One day the lady told me about this, and I proposed trying the dog to see if he still remembered his accomplishment. The lady said, "Oh, he wouldn't do it now; it's been nine years since he did it." But I went down the cellar and put some potatoes where they were kept at that time, and the lady called the dog to her side and said:

"Don, go down cellar and bring me up a potato."

The big dog looked up at his mistress with a questioning look, and the lady repeated the command. Down the stairs went the dog, and up he came with a potato carefully held in his mouth!

Was this an unusual power of memory for an animal to exhibit?—Youth's Companion.

A Cynic Speaks

Director of personnel of a large industrial corporation finds that married men are less liable to injury while at work than divorced chaps or bachelors. This is an upset of theories, indeed. Our impression was that the fact the average man didn't care much what happened to him conduced to make him careless.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Uncle William's Golden Dream

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright.)

My Genevieve, sweet Genevieve,
The seasons come, the seasons go—

THE words of the singer came over the radio very distinctly to Uncle William, more distinctly than to any of the other old men of the home clustered about the radio. This was due partly to the fact that he was younger than any of the others and his hearing was quite perfect. But it was also due to his familiarity with the words of the song. Years ago he had sung it with a girl whose name really had been Genevieve—Genevieve Gray.

There had been a time when he had hoped that her name would become Genevieve Whipple, but shifting circumstances and events had separated them and to this day he did not know what had become of her.

But still the hand of memory weaves The golden dreams of long ago.

If one doesn't care much for checkers or reading or raking the garden, there isn't a great deal for an old man to do except think. And it pleased Uncle William to think a great deal about this long ago Genevieve. She had become his golden dream. He recalled her as an apple blossom sort of girl—pink-cheeked, softly fashioned, sweet.

Sometimes, when his niece Gloria dropped in to see him, he scanned her for some resemblance to his old sweetheart, but although Gloria was young and lively and handsome she was as different from Genevieve Gray as her cropped head, brief skirts and frank outspokenness were different from the other's ribboned curls, lace ruffles and demure charm.

Yet Gloria was very good to Uncle William. She hated his being at the home, but what could a girl do who earned every cent she had in the world? Even if she married Jim Corbin, it would be a long time before Jim earned enough to run an establishment for three people. No, Uncle William was better off at the home. But Gloria ran in whenever she could with bits of gossip about her small affairs, a ticket to the theater, a magazine.

It was Gloria who came in just as "Sweet Genevieve" died away in the speaker. She had some very important news this time, although at first hand it didn't seem to concern Uncle William particularly.

"Do you remember the Demings, Uncle William?" she began.

"Demings," repeated Uncle William thoughtfully. "Demings. Let me see. Might it be Harvey Deming's boy that went to the city and opened up a hotel?"

"That's the one," nodded Gloria.

"Well, I met a girl who rooms there and when she heard I came from Cabotville, she remembered that Mrs. Deming, who runs the hotel—it's a sort of family boarding house—also came from Cabotville and took me round to see her. And now she's asked me to have my wedding in her little parlor. If I don't, Jim and I will just go round to the city hall. But if I accept her invitation, why, you can come and see me married. It hangs on you, you see. How about it, Uncle William? Will you come?"

"Very well, my dear," he said indulgently. "If you want the old man to come, guess he'll have to. Let me know the day and I'll spruce up the best I can."

Any bride is lovely and any recital of the ceremony solemn and breath-taking. But Uncle William, stiff and uncomfortable, his hands folded on an ivory-headed cane, was ill at ease and wishing himself back in the home when, suddenly, his eyes became riveted on the young girl who stood up to take Gloria's flowers as she held out her finger for the ring. He had been noticing nobody but his niece, and now he had all the sensations of a blow in the face. The girl—it must have been that friend Gloria had spoken of—was the exact embodiment of his golden dream. She was Genevieve Gray in likeness if not in the flesh itself.

Uncle William trembled, looking at her. He could hardly wait until the minister closed his book, gave the couple his blessing, and turned away.

Just then Gloria came over to him and threw her arms about his neck. "Thanks for coming, darling," she cried. "Now you must meet Rita's mother. Oh, Mrs. Lane—"

But Uncle William was already staring at the stout, gray-haired woman with the plump, homely face who was walking towards him. "Surely," she said, "you haven't forgotten the little Genevieve Gray who used to sing in the choir with you? I'm Mrs. George Lane now, and Rita here is about the same age as your niece. Ah, how we all change with the years! I remember you as a tall, thin boy with a mop of black hair and—well, heaven knows what you remember about me!"

When Gloria had gone away with her Jim, and Mrs. Deming and Genevieve Gray Lane were talking about the wedding, Uncle William turned pathetically to Rita. "I'll be lonesome, with Gloria away. Run in and cheer an old man up sometimes," he suggested wistfully.

"Of course, I will," said Rita gently. And, if she thought of it and had the spare time, she would. How could she know that she embodied his "golden dream of long ago"?

NEW WING PLANNED FOR U. S. CAPITOL

Building, Begun in 1783, to Have Extension.

Washington.—The capitol, as it stands today, is a symbol of the nation's growth. It has passed through three major stages of expansion, and is yet to be completed through extension of the central part of the east front to give it better architectural balance with the present senate and house sections.

This vast white monument, covering 153,113 square feet, embraces the first capitol of the United States, a modest, almost plain structure about 120 feet long and 100 feet wide, once large enough to accommodate the senate, the house, the Supreme court and the Library of Congress, but now too small for the court and its library.

Funds were scarce when the young government set out in 1793 to build its capitol after a design by Dr. William Thornton, calling for a domed rotunda, a portico and two wings, so it was decided to erect first only the north wing. That was completed in 1800 and congress, the court and the library moved in. "The Oven," a temporary round brick structure, was put up the next year on the site of the house wing, the permanent structure of which was not finished until 1811, three years before both wings were burned by the British. After repairs had been made, work was begun on the rotunda, and the capitol visioned by Thornton was completed in 1827.

It then proved adequate until shortly before the Civil war, when it became necessary to build the present senate and house extensions. Subsequently the library was given a building of its own, and large office buildings were erected for senators and representatives. The library and the house office building are already overcrowded.

When the senate moved into its extension in 1859, the Supreme court acquired the old senate chamber, and only recently have its members been willing to contemplate leaving that room where Webster, Clay, Calhoun, many of the great of the early republic, made history with words. A new site has been selected for a Supreme court building east of the capitol, near the Library of Congress.

South Indian Moslem Women to Discard Veils

Bangalore, India.—Following the example of their Turkish sisters, the Moslem ladies of south India at a gathering of 1,000 representatives adopted a resolution to discard the traditional veil which they claim is imposed by custom and not by religion.

Mrs. Mirza Ismail, wife of the new Moslem prime minister of the Mindu state of Mysore, presided at the conference, which challenged the orthodox religious parties to produce "from the text of the Koran anything enforcing the wearing of a veil."

This unexpected action has created a stir in the south Indian Moslem world.

NEW CLEWS IN STOUT MURDER

McArthur, March 15.—(UP.)—A dinner bucket which contains a note, "I have gone away forever, find me if you can," is one of the most important exhibits by which the state hopes to convict Mrs. Inez Palmer, 24, of the murder of William Stout, 65, wealthy Vinton county farmer.

Officials believe Mrs. Palmer "planted" the bucket and note to corroborate her story of leaving, which was accepted until his body was found Saturday in a well.

These exhibits and her story that Stout told her he killed his wife, Sarah, last November, form the body of evidence against the young woman, who came here last year to serve as housekeeper for Arthur, Stout's son, now in jail charged with the murder of his stepmother.

Authorities hold Mrs. Palmer fabricated the story in the hope that Arthur, to be tried March 21, would be released from jail.

The tale of a tangled love affair was aired after the body was discovered and Mrs. Palmer confessed slaying Stout "in self-defense."

Mrs. Palmer will be arraigned in Vinton County Common Pleas Court tomorrow.

GIANETTI CONVICTED

Man Released From Pen Found Guilty of Murder.

Columbus, March 15.—Joseph Gianetti, alias Henry Delano, recently released from Ohio Penitentiary where he was serving a term on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses in Trumbull county, has been convicted of first degree murder in Providence, R. I. Warden P. E. Thomas learned Monday.

Famed Californian Was Picked Up as Derelict by the Police of Utica, N. Y.

Berkeley, Calif.—A tale of the strange fate of a once famous seion of one of America's oldest families, came to light in dispatches from Utica, N. Y., reporting the body of Dr. George Hillegass had been taken from a pauper's grave and was to be brought to the San Francisco bay region for final burial.

Doctor Hillegass, one of the earliest settlers here, a graduate of the University of California, and distinguished in civic and medical life, dropped from sight in 1913. Old and broken and apparently penniless, he died a public charge in a hospital in Utica in 1925 and was buried in a public cemetery after efforts to find friends or relatives had failed.

The dim beginnings of the story might be traced back to the Revolutionary war when Michael Hillegass rebelled against the power of Great Britain and threw his influence and wealth to the cause of the struggling colonies. His picture adorns some of the $10 gold notes of the country today.

Historians of the family here trace Dr. George Hillegass' ancestry to Michael Hillegass.

Doctor Hillegass, one of the noted physicians of his time, is credited with having given to the University of California much of the land included within the present campus and with having developed extensive holdings in other districts of Berkeley and Oakland. A Berkeley avenue is named for the family.

An extensive search, made after the physician's disappearance in 1913, was unavailing. Then he appeared in Philadelphia in 1922 as a witness in probate proceedings of the estate of Mme. Elmira A. Bouliet, a relative. The estate is a parcel of Oakland waterfront property which has appreciated greatly in value.

Early in 1925, when Doctor Hillegass was picked up by the Utica police in a railroad station, a mysterious bit of human driftwood, he had holdings estimated at $150,000. His wanderings between 1913 and 1922, and in the years between the time he appeared in Philadelphia and at Utica, aged, apparently penniless, disheveled and unkempt, form a mystery that may never be solved. There is no indication he suffered a mental lapse of any sort or that he had any personal habits that would have caused the fall from his high estate.

The family never diminished its search for the physician and Fred C. Peterson, Oakland attorney, employed by members of the family here, finally traced him to the Utica cemetery vault.

A judicious amount of indifference adds piquancy to love-making.

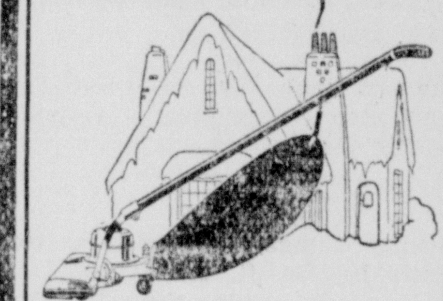

Women who want to help retain the well-earned reputation of the sex for having the last word are advised to write their husband's epitaphs in advance.

"JUST LIKE BLOOD RELATIONSHIP"

"My Affiliation with the First National has been just like blood relationship," said a depositor the other day.

That expresses our ideal of real banking service better than any other words we can think of. Rightly applied, banking service is very much a personal service and requires a definite, individual interest upon the part of the banker.

If you like that conception of banking you would find the friendly atmosphere of the First National very pleasing and our service quite efficient.

HARTMAN THEATER.

The Messrs. Shubert's "The Student Prince" will again offer its altogether bewitching melodic appeal to theatergoers at the Hartman theater next Monday night, for a limited engagement of three days with matinee on Wednesday.

This story of a prince who falls in love with a lowly commoner had a peculiar grip on theatergoers. It is one of several costume musical offerings that can be said to have a universal appeal.

It would be difficult to place one's fingers on the particular moments of the operetta which interest audiences most. Many theatergoers have seen it three and four times and found in each visit an added beauty that was overlooked on the previous visit.

There is no doubt but what Sigmund Romberg has composed a delightful score. There are so many numbers, which call for encores that to call the outstanding moment of the operetta would be an offense to the beauty of another number in the operetta. "Deep in My Heart, Dear," the love duet between the prince and Kathie has tender lilt. It practically acts as the theme of the romantic environment. "Golden Days," "Just We Two," "The Student's Serenade," "To the Inn We're Marching" and "The Drinking Song" all offer something to bring the audiences' hands together to demand encores.

The company this year will be headed by Lloyd Garrett, a young tenor who has received flattering commendation from both critics and public. Ruth Williams will be "Kathie," Margaret Cantrell as the princess and David Reese as "Detleff." Others are James Heenan, Gertrude Maitland, Emmy Niclas, Carl Formes, the third generation of a family of noted singers, Robert Grieg and Gus Alexander.

There will be a student male chorus of fifty and an augmented orchestra of twenty.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

MANY INVITATIONS TO LEGIONNAIRES

Countries of Europe are looking forward eagerly to the visits of American Legionnaires who tour the continent either before or after the convention in Paris next September, according to advices received by Bowman Elder, of Indianapolis, national chairman of the France convention committee. Governments, organizations of veterans of the World war, and individuals are co-operating in providing the best for the veterans who take advantage of the official Legion trip abroad.

An invitation to visit the British Isles has been presented at national headquarters of the Legion in Indianapolis by H. H. Brownlee, commander of London, England, Post No. 1 of the Legion. The British envoy presented an invitation from the "On to Britain" organization for the 30,000 Americans who will attend the Paris convention to cross the channel while abroad. A cablegram received immediately after the visit of Brownlee announced that all British railroads have made a reduction of 25 per cent in rates for the convenience of the Legionnaires. Ireland sent an invitation for the Legionnaires to visit the Emerald Isle before or after the convention.

Offers of the British war veterans for entertainment of the visiting Americans are similar to those made by other countries of Europe. Italy, Belgium and France have granted a considerable reduction in railroad fare. Men who fought in the World war now living in the provincial towns of Europe are organizing to give interpreters and guide service to the Legionnaires who tour the continent.

It is estimated by John J. Wicker, Jr., national travel director, that at least $5,000,000 will be saved the war veterans of the United States in travel and living costs while away from home. One of the most attractive savings is that in eliminating passport and visa charges in all countries of Europe excepting Russia. Legionnaires may obtain an identification certificate with their passage costing but $1 and this serves in lieu of the passport and visa. The French government charges $10 for a passport and $10 for a visa and if the veteran visits France alone he will save $20 by this arrangement. Other countries charge as high as $40 for a visa and the arrangement made by the Legion will save more than $1,000,000 on the total movement of 30,000 persons.

Steamship companies carrying the large peacetime army across the Atlantic have granted cuts in travel costs. The cheaper grade accommodations on the Legion steamers are from $145.80 to $230, averaging $170. They are better than ordinary "tourist cabin" accommodations for regular tourists. The Legionnaire is entitled to the freedom of the ship, which is worth in ordinary travel $83. The independent traveler must pay $182, including tax, to make the round trip "tourist cabin" and the $83 for freedom of the ship would bring the total cost of this trip to $265, if it were not for the travel arrangements of the Legion. The customary landing charge of $5 will not be made of veterans landing at the southern France ports and this will effect a saving on the movement of $150,000.

Ninety per cent of the Legionnaires making reservation to date have chosen to take battlefield and cemetery tours while abroad. A great number have also signified their intention of making extensive tours in Europe under the advantageous travel rates either prior to or after the convention. To take care of those wishing to travel abroad the France convention committee of the Legion has arranged for advanced steamship sailings for the Legionnaires from each state and for delayed return sailings. The railroads in the United States will accept the one-fare-for-round-trip rate from the Legionnaires' home town to the port of embarkation until December 1.

An attractive two-color "On to Paris" steamship folder giving the rates, travel plans, and official information may be obtained by writing to the Department France Convention Officer of any state or to the France Convention Committee, National Headquarters, the American Legion, Indianapolis, Ind.

The First Doll's House
What may prove to be the earliest British doll's house has been discovered in an old country house in Chelmsford. It is a two-storied house about five feet high, built of solid oak, and contains four large rooms, attics and a balcony on top. The legs on which the house is mounted and the paneling and the mirrors, are, it is said of definite Queen Anne design and workmanship.

London Street Is Paved With Blocks of Rubber
Washington.—The first thoroughfare to be constructed of rubber is now in use in London. Blocks consisting of rubber caps, vulcanized to a brick base, have been laid in New Bridge street, a road subjected to heavy traffic, and, according to cable reports to the Department of Commerce, have proved successful.

Old Notion Incorrect
If a ship is heavy enough to sink below the surface it will go all the way down. There is nothing to the notion that the pressure of the water will hold up a heavy ship and keep it suspended part way down.
